$1.2 million land gift to medical center

By MARIE MCKINSEY
"This is the most impressive gift that has ever been received in the history of St. Elizabeth's," said Sister Mary Thomas, president of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, as she announced that 37.2 acres of land on Maryville Road in Granite City has been donated to the Medical Center.

The property, with an appraised value of $1.2 million, is a joint contribution of the fractional interests of local physicians Ciro Gonzalez, Obert Lay, and the partnership of Lorenzo Maun, Amorn Salyapongse and N. Suthan.

The land is being given to SEMC to promote the growth and expansion of health care services in the area, reflecting the faith in the economy held by area business and industry, Sister Thomas reported.

"I know that with a high unemployment rate in our area, the holidays seem rather bleak for many people this year," she observes. "But it is important for people to have hope. Things will get better."

"SEMC and local industry are committed to the people in this area," she said. She points to construction, investment in capital equipment, and expansion of services and facilities as evidence of this commitment.

These investments indicate faith on the part of industry that the economy will improve, she adds.

Pleased that members of the medical staff share in this faith," she says, "The generosity of this donation demonstrates that these physicians support not just St. Elizabeth's, but the Quad-City community, as well. This is truly a wonderful Christmas gift."

The medical center president described the gift of land as "the largest donation ever made to the medical center."

The center has been the recipient of several gifts this holiday season. The emergency medical technicians and paramedics of the city's fire department ambulance service also contributed greatly to the facility, bringing approximately $1,500 worth of toys, decorations and entertainment to the medical center and the pediatrics department.

The medical technicians and paramedics also took turns bringing Santa Claus into the pediatrics department, making Christmas a little brighter for those youngsters who will have to spend the holiday in St. Elizabeth, rather than at home with their families.

THE GIFT THAT LASTS. Land, in this case 37.2 acres of it, is donated to St. Elizabeth Medical Center by a group of doctors who owned the property. Although there are no current plans for using the land, Sister Mary Thomas, president of SEMC, has pledged that it will be used "to promote the growth and expansion of health care services in the area. Shown are, from left, Dr. Ciro Gonzalez and Dr. Obert Lay, donors; Sister Mary Thomas, president of SEMC, and Dr.

L. M. Aronberg and Dr. A. Razzaq, physicians who head up the physicians' portion to the fund development drive for the medical center. The land, located along the east side of Maryville Road north of Tri-City Park Tabernacle, has an appraised commercial value of $1.2 million. Not pictured are Doctors Lorenzo Maun and A. Salyapongse, donors.

Where does Portell work?

By GEORGEANN MCGEE
of the Press-Record

The Granite City Council has declined to formally request the resignation of Superintendent of Streets Lionel Portell, who has been "missing" for two weeks, according to Mayor Paul Schuler.

However, Robert Irvin, city manager of St. Peters, Mo., told the Press-Record Friday that Portell is not missing and has been working as that town's public works superintendent since Dec. 7.

Reached St. Peters, Portell said that before he will submit his resignation, he intends to sit down with city officials here to discuss his successor and to talk about "built up" days off he accumulated as a street foreman.

"There are a few things I want to make them aware of the first of the (this) week," Portell said. Portell said he "wants like to have some input into who is being considered" for his position as street superintendent. He said he has selected his own candidate, but does not wish to disclose his choice yet.

Portell said he could have chosen to talk with the city officials after submitting a resignation letter, but decided to wait. "This is an elected job. I don't have to resign if I don't want to," Portell said.

Portell said he would like to work out a way to be compensated for about 90 days of time he has "built up," and said such time is generally given to employees when they retire. He also said he feels he has "some vacation time" coming to him.

When City Manager Irvin was asked where Portell could be found Friday, Irvin said Portell was doing "field work," in light of that city's recent snowfall. Portell said he has been in regular contact with the Granite City Street Department personnel, facing their own ice and snow problem. He said he left two foremen in charge of city street operations here.

Whether or not he submits his resignation after talking with officials this week, he said, "depends on the conversations."

Portell had confirmed his intentions to the resign his position in Granite City to take the new job in St. Peters to the employees when they retire. He also said

St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Pediatrics Department's Christmas party. The city's EMTs donated $1,500 worth of toys, decorations and entertainment for the little patients.

Campaign by Judge Rarick is launched

JUDGE PHILIP RARICK

Circuit Judge Phillip J. Rarick of Madison County, a candidate in the March primary, has announced that the chairman for his election campaign will be Lewis Krause, former mayor of Collinsville.

In making the announcement, Judge Rarick said, "I am pleased that a man like Mayor Krause is willing to lend his time and efforts to my campaign. I have known him for a long time and we have always had a good working relationship."

Judge Rarick, before going on the bench was city attorney for Collinsville from 1969 to 1975, which resulted in him serving in the Krause administration.

Krause said, "It is with great pleasure that I have agreed to head his campaign for circuit judge. He is a lawyer of considerable skill and has an exemplary record as a judge."

"As a lawyer in Collinsville, in partnership with Robert Cadigan and now Appellate Judge Moses Harrison, he did a fine job."

In 1975, Rarick was appointed to the bench as an associate judge handling civil, criminal, probate and family matters.

He rose to chief associate judge before the Illinois Supreme Court elevated him to circuit judge in December 1980. He is now serving in the Criminal Felony Division, where he maintains a current docket.

His experience also includes three terms as an assistant state's attorney in the Madison County state's attorneys office and served as attorney for Collinsville and Jarvis townships.

The judge is married to the former Janet Arnovitz, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Arnovitz of Granite City and the late Dr. Emmanuel M. Arnovitz.

He attended parochial and public schools in Collinsville before receiving his bachelor of arts degree in 1962 from Southern Illinois University. Prior Portell employed?

Press-Record Dec. 5, but did not make his plans known to Granite City officials.

When questioned about Portell's current status with the city, Mayor Schulz said: "Nobody knows where he is." The mayor told aldermen at last week's council meeting that Portell has apparently disappeared.

The mayor said he is holding Portell's payroll check until he gets some kind of communication from the street superintendent. "He hasn't called me... or left any messages."

Portell's status became an issue at the last council meeting when Alderman Paul Ray Bowler of the Seventh Ward asked fellow aldermen what action should be taken about a man who apparently has a job outside the city, yet holds the title of street superintendent here. "What are we going to do? Ask him to resign?" Bowler asked.

City Attorney John Papa said that if Portell refuses to hold his position, the city could go to the circuit court and have the position declared vacant. The mayor then would be free to appoint a street superintendent to serve until the next regular city election.

As an elected official, Portell cannot be dismissed by the city and a successor cannot be appointed, until a resignation is received.

Alderman Paul Clark of the Third Ward asked City Clerk Robert W. Stevens if Portell is on vacation, but Stevens said that an elected official has no set vacation time. Bowler made a motion that Papa send a registered letter to Portell asking for his resignation and, if that is not forthcoming, for the city to go to court and have the position declared vacant. Bowler said the "machinery" has to be set in motion for the appointment of a new superintendent.

"You're going too fast," Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward told Bowler. Whitmer said the question of Portell's status with the city was then less than two weeks old. "The council has no right to interfere in this," Whitmer contended.

He told aldermen that Portell is an elected official who received an "overwhelming" endorsement from the voters of Granite City. Whitmer said the first of January is "ample time" to wait for a resignation.

Bowler's motion failed on a 9 to 3 vote with Aldermen Mac Warfield and Stephen Saltich, both of the Sixth Ward, the only ones joining with Bowler in voting that a letter be sent to Portell. Portell has served on the staff of the street department for 33½ years in various capacities as worker, foreman and finally as superintendent, a position which he assumed in 1971.

Course on finding job and planning a career

For students who are undecided on a career, Belleville Area College offers Job Finding and Career Planning, a two-credit course taught through the counseling center in conjunction with the career business program.

The class is for all types of students, whether they are recent high school graduates or an older person entering the job market for the first time or retraining for a new career.

"The class is designed for students who don't have any idea what they want to go into," said Dennis Sparr of the counseling center. "We teach them something about themselves and then match them up with job areas."

The class employs a step-by-step process that begins with the students exploring their own values, skills and interests through group exercises, interest inventories and value clarification tests.

"We get them to the point where they can zero in on one or two career areas," Sparr said.

The class members then take a closer look at the specific job area. They are Ethnic dancers, food at dinner of literature classes

Ethnic and World Literature classes at Granite City High School South held their annual banquet last week in the school cafeteria. Students in Mrs. Wendy Kambarian's and Helen Velloff's classes planned the menu, entertainment, and decorations.

Mrs. Dorothy Votoupal, substitute for Mrs. Kambarian, assisted with the preparations this year. Foods served included Italian, Macedonian, Armenian, Mexican, German, Polish, Irish and Oriental.

Many students prepared dishes themselves, including breads and desserts. Following the meal, seven members of the SUE Eastern European Dance Troupe presented a program of Polish dances and accordion music. Then, all the students and several guests participated in Greek and Armenian dances led by Helen Velloff.

In addition to the 70 students who attended the banquet, several guests were present, including Assistant Principals Allen Kennerly and Kenneth Spalding and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Votoupal and family, Helen Koenigler and Mrs. Muriel Kratz of the high school faculty.

provided with the opportunity to get information on working conditions, salary and education needed.

Speakers are brought into class and students learn to use facilities provided by the counseling center.

Students also interview people who are working in the field they are interested in. Finally, the class focuses on how to get a job.

Students learn how to write cover letters and resumes. Mock interviews are held in the class to give them a chance to practice job-interviewing skills.

Next semester, the class will be expanded to 16 weeks for the first time. Two sections will be offered, one from noon to 1:30 p.m. on Fridays and the other from 7 to 8:50 p.m. on Tuesdays.

The class will meet at the BAC campus, 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville. The counseling center telephone is 325-2700, extension 206.

Community blood drive next week

A community blood drive sponsored by Church Women United will be held during the Christmas season. There is always a need for blood during the holiday, as blood needs go up and donors become busy with other things, a spokesman for the American Red Cross noted.

"It takes one hour to give blood. That is 60 minutes which could save a life. There is no gift more precious," the spokesman said.

The drive will take place at St. Elizabeth Church, Pontoon and Johnson roads, Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 28 and 29, from 2 to 6:45 p.m., and on Wednesday, Dec. 30, from 10 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.

"A blood donation will enable at least three people to enjoy the holiday season. Many people in the 140 hospitals in Missouri-Illinois region of Red Cross Blood Services, depend on blood just to stay alive. They depend on healthy donors."

"Blood cannot be artificially manufactured. It has to come from people who care enough to give.

"There is still time to give that very personal holiday gift. It doesn't strain your budget and you don't have to do any shopping for it."

You'll probably never know who receives your gift, but there is one thing you can be sure of — it will be needed and appreciated," the spokesman stated, adding, "The gift is blood. The gift of life."

Relax demands for restoring home heating

Illinois Power Company customers without heat because of unpaid utility bills may now have service restored under terms of a new program discussed today with the Illinois Commerce Commission.

This new plan allows disconnected customers who pay one-third of their outstanding bills and 20 percent of any required deposits to have service restored immediately. The balance of the deposit may be paid in four installments. Any charges due for reconnection would have to be paid and the customer would have to agree to a payment plan on the balance of the unpaid bill.

Persons who receive utility bill assistance from federal funds during 1981 also would be eligible for additional help with outstanding bills. A minimum of $290 per customer is available in federal funds for persons who received federal help last year. That amount would be deducted from the unpaid bills of persons applying for restoration of service under the terms announced Thursday.

Tips by police on coping with holiday rush, parties

Chief of Police Ronald J. Veizer commented today that the holidays ahead traditionally build up needless pressures in Granite City's traffic, as well as in people.

"We know better," he said, "but we still get caught in a complex turmoil of last-minute shopping, parties, and heavier than normal drinking."

"Persons subjected to such stresses—walkers as well as drivers—are less able to cope with the everyday problems of avoiding accidents."

Chief Veizer's holiday "behavior modification" tips, endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, include:

—Plan shopping trips well in advance. Give yourself a chance to slow your pace and take it easy.

—When walking, don't hide behind a pile of packages. Cross streets only at crosswalks where drivers expect you.

—Driving or walking, keep alert for bad weather that causes traffic tie-ups and unsure footing.

As for over-enthusiastic party goers, the chief reminded that "alcohol slows reflexes, impairs coordination and reduces visual acuity. You can't act as quickly or as rationally as you normally can.

"Put a person in this condition behind the wheel of a car, add winter's poor visibility and inadequate traction, and you multiply the chances of a tragic crash beyond all reason," Chief Veizer added.

do well to heed this advice. Black coffee, cold showers, fresh air or other folkloric remedies won't help. Time is the only answer—time for your body to dispose of the alcohol.

"After several drinks, that time may be several hours. "Ride home with a friend or take public transportation," Veizer recommended. He concluded with this note: "If you can't watch out for yourself, we'll have to watch out for you."

Eagles pound last nail in Cards' coffin

OTIS ANDERSON
102 yards in the season finale

Special to the Press-Record
PHILADELPHIA — That hammering sound you probably heard outside your window about 3:30 Sunday afternoon wasn't the pitter patter of each little hoof on your roof. It was the sound of the Philadelphia Eagles pounding the final nail in the casket of the St. Louis Football Cardinals.

The Eagles had very little trouble of getting rid of the Cardinals, who looked more worried about getting home for the holidays than winning a football game. Philadelphia humiliated the Big Red 38-0 at Veterans' Stadium in the final game of the season.

But the final score wasn't as bad as the previous time the two teams had met. The Eagles blasted the Big Red 52-10 earlier this season at Busch Stadium.

Going into the game, the Cardinals were talking about revenge for that mid-season. Even though the Big Red were knocked out of the running for wild-card playoff berth last week when they fell to the New York Giants, they nonetheless wanted another shot at the Eagles.

After their latest pasting at the hands of the Philadelphia Eagles, they might not ever want to see a green and silver helmet again.

"They got a big jump on us," said St. Louis head coach Jim Hanifan. "It was over early. It seemed like we were never in the game."

Playoff picture no longer cloudy

ST. LOUIS — The playoff picture in the National Football League finally cleared somewhat after Saturday and Sunday action on the last weekend of the season.

The New York Jets both wrapped up wild card playoff berths in the National and American conferences, respectively.

The Cardinals completely dominated us. Many times, statistics lie. They don't tell a true story of how a game was played. Not this time. The Eagles had 25 first downs to the Cardinals' 11, 209 yards rushing to the Cardinals' 139 and 185 yards passing to the Cardinals' 72.

To further emphasize just how much the Eagles dominated the flow of the game, consider this: In the first quarter, the Philadelphia defense held the Cardinals' offense to three (count 'em, three) net yards. Even though the score at the end of the first period was only 7-0, it was clear that the game, for all intents and purposes, was over.

Pat Tilley, the spunky St. Louis wide receiver who caught five passes for 51 yards Sunday, feels a lack of maturity on the team's part is partly the reason for the poor showing in the season finale. "It's a sign of immaturity as a team," he said. "Either we've got a lot of unhappy players here or a lot of immature players."

"We're either not as good as we think we are, or we just don't give a rip."

The loss for the Cardinals wrapped up last place in the National Conference Eastern Division. The Big Red was tied with Washington going into week 16, but the Redskins beat Los Angeles, to move them up a notch.

One bright sign for the Cardinals was the running of Otis Anderson. He picked up 102 on carries. But he was practically the only bright spot.

But then again, the Eagles didn't exactly look like gangbusters as the game opened, either. They had lost four straight games, but had a wild-card playoff berth wrapped up anyway, thanks to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle's "patrid party" season. Philadelphia fumbled the ball over to the Cardinals on two of its first three possessions. But the Cardinals weren't about to

Last-second shot lifts Althoff over North

By TERESA GULL
of the Press-Record
BELLEVILLE — Granite City North probably thought they were seeing double during the fourth quarter of their game against Belleville Althoff Saturday night.

On the court for Althoff were identical twins, Kevin and Dave McFarland. It was the McFarland twins' aggressive play which helped whittle down a 13-point fourth quarter North lead to give Althoff a 69-68 come from behind victory.

"We let their pressure bother us. We made a couple of bad passes at the end of the game and some silly mistakes. We didn't keep our composure," Ohlendorf said.

Steve Hill's third slam dunk of the game with 3:35 remaining started the momentum rolling for Althoff. His basket cut North's lead to six points.

Then, with 1:27 left in the game, Kevin McFarland scored four quick points on two steals to reduce North's lead to four points, 67-63. Bill Meyer, Althoff's sophomore center, made two free throws to make the score 67-65.

North's Carl Leuhman was then called for a charging foul, giving the ball to Althoff. Hill's basket with :52 tied the score at 67-67.

Leuhman was fouled, made his first free throw but missed the second end of his one-and-one, giving North a 69-67 lead.

With :18 seconds left, a 20 foot jump shot by Dave McFarland gave Althoff the lead. Harold Rody's shot with :7 left was in-and-out for North, and Althoff hung on for the win.

Moore was pleased with the way his team fought back and executed the game winning basket. Moore said, "We were behind. We had to score. It wasn't going to do us any good to let the clock run down."

He was especially pleased with the play of the McFarland twins, particularly Kevin. It was Kevin's first opportunity at the varsity level. Both teams played sporadically. Althoff dominated play the first four minutes of the game, building up an 8-0 lead before North scored its first basket. North controlled the second and third quarters, holding Althoff to just eight points the third quarter. It upset Ohlendorf that his team didn't put Althoff away when they had a 13 point lead in the fourth quarter.

"We didn't match up to them physically. We didn't fight back," Ohlendorf said. "We have to get that killer instinct."

Ohlendorf noted North had the same problem when they played Cahokia - losing a big fourth quarter lead because of the lack of the killer instinct.

It was Althoff's killer instinct that was encouraging for Moore. "I was pleased we hung in there and fought back at the end," Moore said.

Kahoks' strong second half too much for North

By ROGER KRAMER
For the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Collinsville basketball coach Gene Catalpa was concerned with the Granite City North Steelers before Friday's game between the two schools because he remembered the Steelers defeated Edwardsville and lost by two points to Cahokia earlier this season.

Catalpa was concerned with the Steelers at halftime because the Kahoks led North by only 12 points. The Kahok offense finally put things together in the third quarter, Catalpa's concerns quickly passed, and Collinsville cruised to a 80-44 victory over the Steelers.

"We had a couple of big victories last week, and I was a little concerned about how we would play. North is a well-coached team, and because they beat Edwardsville and played well against Cahokia and Wood River, we knew they could give us problems," Catalpa said.

North's defense forced the Kahoks to take bad shots in the first half, but Collinsville's physical style wore down the Steelers.

"They're a good basketball team," North coach Bill Ohlendorf said about the Kahoks. "Everything they did went negative for us and positive for them. They had fun and we didn't. Even their subs had fun while ours didn't and we didn't expect that to happen."

North did have a little bit of fun in the first half. The Steelers trailed 11-3 after the first quarter. Collinsville missed nine of its first 13 shots. The Kahoks also made five turnovers that quarter.

Collinsville increased the lead to 34-22 in the second quarter. The Kahoks, suffering from mediocre free throw shooting in some of its games this season, made 11 of 14 free throw attempts in the second quarter.

For the game, the Kahoks made 29 of 36 attempts at the line.

"We had some games in which we weren't shooting free throws very well, so we emphasized free throw shooting in practice this week," Catalpa said.

"In order to be a good team, we have to make the free throws because if you don't make them, it's just like a turnover. If you don't make them, you should make almost all your shots."

The free throws were the most impressive part of the Kahok attack in the first half. Catalpa wasn't pleased with the Kahoks' offensive effort in the first half.

"I didn't think we worked on getting a good shot, we had a couple of steals and a couple of bad passes. Sometimes, your offense is going to do that, and that's why good defense is so important," Catalpa said.

The Kahoks struck in the first two minutes of the third quarter with two baskets by Jim McConkey and one by Mike Hunter to take an 18 point lead. After that, Collinsville had no problems increasing its lead.

"We felt we were still in it at half-time," Ohlendorf said. "But we missed a couple of easy shots and got mixed up on offense. It was the reverse of what happened in the first half. They came out with a couple of steals and six points and it was all over."

How hot did the Kahoks get? Marc Parker who scored just four points in the first half, made all five of his shots in the third quarter and ended up with 17 points. The Kahoks made nine of 12 shots that quarter.

"We just didn't take advantage of the things they gave us. They were more physical than we were. They intimidated us and all that stuff," Ohlendorf said.

Hunter scored 16 points and McConkey 15 for the Kahoks. Carl Luehmann and Steve Trittachuh both scored 11 points to lead the Steelers. After Collinsville's poor shooting effort in the first quarter, the Kahoks made 25 of 32 attempts from the field for 48 percent while North only made 12 of 37 shots for 32 percent.

"If you keep a team under 50 points, you've done a good job on defense," Catalpa said. "We put a lot of pressure on the man on the ball and at times we were very effective in stopping them."

St. Louis U. joining Midwest Cities league

Special to the Press-Record
ST. LOUIS — St. Louis University will leave the Metro Conference at the end of the current season after an "amicable seven year relationship" according to SLU Vice President Charles C. Schroeder, and affiliate with the more regionally oriented Midwestern City conference, it was announced here Friday.

Dr. Schroeder, whose administrative responsibilities include supervision of SLU athletics, said the decision was reached with several key considerations in mind. These include a commitment to maintain a competitive Division One level program; membership in a conference more local in nature to stimulate competitive interest and better contain soaring travel costs; retention of the Checkerdome as the home court for the Billiken basketball team; and a more equitable distribution of existing financial support for soccer, women's sports and minor men's sports.

The immediate gain anticipated by the SLU administrator "will be the opportunity to further improve the quality of the total sports program offered St. Louis University students, in particular, and Billiken fans in general. "We are particularly encouraged," Dr. Schroeder added, "because we already are having this year with athletics a better time of it financially. This is especially true in the area of fund raising. For the first time in St. Louis University history, $80,000 has been raised in support of the Bob Bauman Athletic Fund."

"Early indications," he continued, "are that gate receipts should also be better those of a year ago, thanks to arrangements made with the Checkerdome for the intense promotion of several events and double-headers."

"The University also has clearly indicated its commitment to supporting its present high level of subsidy — $60,000 — as long as improvements continue to be made in the financial picture and the quality of the total athletic program offered."

"We are quite optimistic," he concluded "that we can continue our efforts to build a self-supporting athletic program and thereby reduce our dependence on the University subsidy. This, I believe, can be accomplished through continued improved management, and greater attention to public relations and sport promotional needs of our teams."

Lincoln edges fired-up Effingham, 55-45

EFFINGHAM — The East St. Louis Lincoln Tigers broke away from a stubborn Effingham Flaming Hearts squad here Friday night to grab a 55-45 victory and run their record to 8-1 on the season. Saturday, the Tigers defeated Vashon of St. Louis to make their record 9-1.

Against Effingham, the Tigers led the Flaming Hearts by only four points, going into the fourth quarter, but outscored Effingham 16-10 in the final stanza to take the 10-point victory.

The score was tied 43-43 with 4:37 remaining in the game.

Todd Porter scored 15 points for Lincoln.

In other Friday action, Wood River defeated Highland 56-34; Roxana blitzed Mascoutah 56-32; New Athens edged Breese Central 53-52; Red Bud slugged Columbia 87-67; Waterloo beat Dupo 51-43; Mar

Exact-cost bus contract 'impossible'

By ED GURNEY
The Madison County Transit Board next year will apparently continue to have a contract with Bi-State that does not specify the amount the transit district will pay for bus service.

It is "almost an impossible task" to determine an exact cost for the contract, Bi-State Budget Evaluation Director Mike Jones told the transit board last week.

The proposed new contract, covering the period from January to June, is expected to be discussed again at the next transit board meeting.

The statements by Bi-State representatives that an exact cost contract is impossible disappointed transit board chairman Bill Haine, who wanted the bus firm's charges specified.

The district's current one-year contract with Bi-State to provide bus service expires Dec. 31.

That contract has the transit district paying the actual cost of bus service, minus the amount received by Bi-State through fares, state and federal grants, and the regular share of Illinois' sales taxes.

The transit district's funds come from a special one-fourth cent sales tax established last February. Jones and Ed Hunzeker, fiscal director for Bi-State, said it would be too difficult to estimate revenues and expenses to come up with an exact cost contract. Revenue sources vary, and expenses like union wages and fuel are uncertain, Jones said.

"We have no cushion to fall back on if we make an honest mistake in estimating the cost of providing service to you," Jones said.

"There's a feeling there's no lid on (it costs)," Haine said. "You're saying there's no way to put a lid on it."

The proposed new contract discussed last week calls for the same level of service now being provided by Bi-State, said Mike Thompson, attorney for the transit board. Under that contract, the district would pay a set amount in installments.

If there are additions or cuts in service, Bi-State would compute the cost or savings and the transit board would decide if it wants to go along with the change, Thompson said.

Another provision of the contract would be to have Bi-State, if possible, build its next new garage in Madison County. This provision would be difficult to enforce, Thompson admitted.

Transit District Director Susan Schold said the agreement does not give Bi-State the unilateral right to change the level of service. Bi-State has that right in Missouri, she said. She thinks the district has to accept that the cost of bus service may vary, based on the level of income from other sources.

"If we're not satisfied, we can discontinue buying service from Bi-State," she said.

Thompson said he could be more sympathetic to Bi-State if the contract were to be for five or 10 years rather than six months.

"Could costs be so exorbitant that you couldn't live with them for six months?" he asked.

In other business, the board:

—Heard Susan Schold report that the Madison County Office of Manpower Development has proposed to help Bi-State find applicants for employment with the bus firm. The uncomplicated arrangement would give Bi-State an incentive to hire Madison County residents, she said.

"It seems to be an excellent idea," Haine said. The transit board has been interested in giving county residents a better opportunity to apply for jobs with Bi-State.

The Manpower office's proposal is being reviewed by interim Bi-State director John Poelker.

—Approved a contract with the East-West Gateway Coordinating council concerning management of the transit district.

Cost of the six-month contract is $16,000 and it covers Susan Schold's salary and other services provided by the agency.

She is employed by East-West, and has served as part-time director of both the Madison and St. Clair county transit districts.

Wright-Sykes

Miss Karl Lynn Sykes and Len Wright were united in marriage on Oct. 17 at St. Matthews Methodist Church, Belleville.

The Rev. Robert Souders and the Rev. L. C. Preuchers performed the double ring ceremony at 6:30 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Scott Sykes, 3718 Jeanette Drive, and the late Mrs. Jan Sykes. Parents of the groom are Mrs. Gloria Wright, 6 Huntington Drive, Belleville, and the late Gordon L. Wright.

Mr. Sykes escorted his daughter to the altar. She selected a floor length white lace gown designed with a molded bodice featuring an oval neckline and long tapered sleeves.

Her bouffant skirt extended into a chapel train. She wore a crown of seed pearls and lace to secure an elbow length veil and she held a nosegay of white roses centered in greenery.

Sherrie Janulavaga was honor attendant and Leann Sykes, a sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid.

They were attired in white A-line dresses embellished with blue flowers created with lace bodices and scoop necklines. Each attendant held a nosegay of blue and white flowers.

Sickman visits SIUE; tells of the horror of Iran captivity

By TOMMYE WALTER
Rodney "Rocky" Sickman's yesterday have a habit of slipping into his mind. And, without a doubt, they will always be with him. Although he appears to be living the life of the average man these days, the physical and mental indignities that Sickman endured as one of the 52 American hostages in Iran for 444 days still plague him. From these memories, he may never be free, he commented during a recent visit to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Today, less than a year since his release, Rocky Sickman is out of the military service, married, and has taken a job as an account executive with KMOX-FM Radio. It's a long hop, skip and jump from his days of "carrot jam" and "pebble bread" in Iran. Carrot jam and pebble bread aren't often found on any menu; and they were gourmet experiences unfamiliar to Sickman before his imprisonment. Today he speaks of them in a light vein, as though he experienced them as a tourist. And somehow, it's indicative of the way he presents what had to be a dehumanizing ordeal.

The day he was introduced to what he calls "rock" bread was one of those mornings when he was feeling unusually depressed. In the Middle East, many people bake their bread in the sun. This particular loaf must have been laid upon loose gravel.

Not very alert, Sickman snarled the bread with carrot jam, rolled it up, and popped it into his mouth. "I bit down on a rock," he admitted, sheepishly as though it were his own fault, then adding that "they left the rocks for you worry about." No doubt about it. Rocky Sickman is an entertaining storyteller. But from the way he tells the bread incident, one begins to get some idea of the subtle indignities, and some not so subtle, abuses which were heaped upon the American hostages.

In addressing a large group of U.S. Air Force cadets at SIUE, Sickman first provided a "Readers Digest" version of his 444-day ordeal: "I had taken the day off. I was going to town. I was about to go into the motor pool gate, when the recall was sounded..." He remembers again the screaming; he sees the people clamoring over the fence.

A Marine security guard, Sickman had only been in the country 27 days. Out of 13 Marines assigned to the embassy, only seven were on duty. The rest were at the housing compound. "They were taken hostage right at first," he said.

The Marines had orders not to fire any weapons or to throw gas grenades, but to stand ready until ordered otherwise—or until the host country arrived with reinforcements. "The host country never arrived," he said.

"Two days later, the whole government had fallen," he said, adding, "Who does the U.S. work with then?" Once the Americans were taken hostage, Sickman said they tried to keep themselves occupied. The first two days were the hardest. For two months, they were tied in chairs during the day and slept tied on the floor at night. Christmas came along and someone decided it would make a nice gesture to get the hostages in front of a television camera. "Remember seeing the big jar of candy on the table? We got one piece," he said. "It was really just a propaganda scene for them."

In the beginning, the hostages thought it would only be a matter of days before they were released. When nothing happened, they set goals for weeks, then months, and finally, a year. "We always shot for some goal. You shot for a year. After nothing happened, you lived by each day," he said.

"We had to keep ourselves busy, both mentally and physically. My training pushed me through," Sickman told the cadets, mentally reliving the long days of misery. "Trying to keep yourself occupied was the harder part of all... Hoping the next day would bring you something. If nothing happened, you waited for something else," Sickman remembered. "You had to keep your sense of humor. When one of the guards played a joke on you, you had to play a joke on him."

coincided with a frantic dispersal of the prisoners to northern, southern, eastern and western areas. The mock firing squads were the worst experiences of all. Once the hostages were interrupted while they played cards and were forced to undress and "spreadeagle" against the wall. "I thought this was the end of it," Sickman said, adding, "Seriously, images of my life flashed before me."

The guards never got around to firing. Finally, the prisoners were allowed to put their clothes back on and were taken back to their room. About the incident, Sickman said, "Lots of times we could have cracked. You had to keep your head straight. One false move and you were going to be a dead person." "All of their uncertainties came to an end on Jan. 20, when they were released. After all the months of waiting, of praying for release, when did the 23-year-old Marine first realize that freedom was a reality?"

"When we cleared Iranian airspace," he said, emphatically. How did he know? "Two Turkish fighters came up and began to fly alongside us." In response to that remark, someone commented, "It gives me the shivers just to hear you say that," Sickman responded, "It does me, too."

Holiday safety includes choosing safe toys, gifts

By CATHERINE MAUCK
County Extension Adviser
There are more accidents in December than in any other month. Holidays mean more traffic accidents, home fires, accidents with toys, falls and poisonings. With children wandering from room to room, new electrical appliances being put to use, extension cords strung all about and the houses packed with relatives, the hazards are abundant.

When choosing Christmas toys for children, parents should make sure each toy fits the age and temperament of the child. For infants and toddlers, the toys shouldn't be small enough for them to swallow. Beware of sharp edges and hidden pins and wires.

For young children who have passed the toddler stage, parents should still make sure that toys don't have parts that can be pulled off and swallowed. Toys that shoot projectiles and have sharp parts should be given only to older children.

In addition, parents should make sure all toys, especially imported ones, are nonflammable and are not coated with lead-base paint.

When it comes to holiday entertaining, adults should follow the one-for-one plan. This means that you shouldn't drink more than one one-ounce glass of alcohol per hour. It usually takes about one hour for the body to eliminate the alcohol in a one-ounce drink.

It's a myth that coffee will sober up a tipsy person. Only time will eliminate alcohol from the bloodstream; so if you're a host, close the bar one hour before guests are expected to leave. Also, never allow a guest to drive away from your party when he's under the influence. Drive him home or call a cab.

Numerous Revolutionary soldiers buried here

(First of two articles)
(Miss Pauline Meyer of Edwardsville researched the subject of the Revolutionary soldiers buried in Madison County and spoke to the Lewis and Clark Chapter of the Illinois Society, Sons of the American Revolution. The attached paper is the result of Miss Meyer's research.)

Dr. Donald L. Worley of Belleville is president of the chapter and president of the Illinois Society. Colonel Charles B. Schweizer, USA (Ret.) of Glen Carbon is the president-elect of the chapter.

The battles fought by Revolutionary soldiers buried in Madison County trace the history of the war from its beginning to end.

Jabez Turner enlisted in May, 1775. He was a revolutionist before the Revolution. Rubin Hopkins was at Bunker Hill. Gaus Paddock was with General George Washington at Valley Forge.

William Hall, Absolom Baker, Martin Pruitt, John Cornelison, Labian Smart and John Long all fought important battles in the South including the sieges of Charleston and Camden, the battles at King's Mountain, Cowpens, Monk's Corner, Biggin's Bridge, Gullford Courthouse and Eutaw Springs.

Cornwallis surrendered. After the war many men continued to serve in Indian wars. Frances Roach, Robert Seybok and William Biggs served with General Rogers Clark in 1782 and General Benjamin Logan in 1796.

Revolutionary soldiers buried in Madison County served in many capacities during the war. Their duties varied from that of George Bridges' and Robert Coulter's service as drummer boys to Martin Pruitt's service as a spy.

After the war, many soldiers came to this area due to the government's offer of land grants in recognition of their service in the Revolutionary War.

One such soldier was James Gilliam who had come to the American Bottom in search of his wife and two children who had been kidnapped from their farm in Kentucky and held for ransom in 1790 by the Kickapoo Indians.

His five-year search across the western frontier ended when he found his wife and children living among those Indians. He remembered the beautiful fertile prairies of Illinois and returned here in 1802, bringing with him his family, including several brothers who had also been Revolutionary soldiers.

The brothers, like James, became farmers and all are buried in Madison County. One of the stories that Edwardsville historians enjoy telling is that in 1815 Congress is said to have given Mrs. Gilliam 160 acres of land at the head of Long Lake in testimony of the hardship and suffering she had endured during her captivity among the Indians.

The Kickapoos caused a great deal of trouble until the Indian Treaty was signed in 1823. The Kickapoos were responsible for what has become known as the Wood River Massacre and took place on July 18, 1818.

The families of several Revolutionary soldiers were affected by this terrible event. Beagan, wife of Reason Reagen, and their two children, the two children of Abel Moore and his wife and two children of William Moore and his wife, were all killed in that massacre.

Marlin Pruitt, another Revolutionary soldier who had brought his family to this area to settle on a farm in Foster Township in 1806, had two sons, James and Abraham.

These boys pursued and caught one of the Kickapoo Indians who had killed Mrs. Reagen. When the Indian was cornered, he tried to shoot the other Pruitt boys, but his gun jammed just long enough for the other Pruitt to shoot the Indian. When the Indian's shot pouch was removed from his dead body, Mrs. Reagen's scalp was found inside. The gun is now exhibit at the Madison County Historical Museum in Edwardsville.

Another Revolutionary soldier buried in Madison County who had his trouble with the Kickapoo Indians was William Biggs, who was captured and held for $300 ransom by the Indians.

Later, in 1826, he published an account of his captivity. Although he served as a Representative of the Illinois Territory after coming to this area following the war, he is best remembered for having dug a salt well, reported to have been 40 feet deep in 1823 near the bank of Silver Creek in Section 19 in Saline Township, Madison County.

He invested a considerable amount of money in the project. He hired 20 men and used 15 cords of wood a day to keep 40 large kettles boiling for evaporating purposes. However, all that work only produced six bushels of salt a day. This project caused his money to evaporate into thin air.

Today the well is in the bed of Silver Creek due to a change in the creek's course over these many years. Biggs dug his well only four years before his death in 1827.

Thomas Tindall, another soldier buried in Madison County, brought his family West after the war. As they traveled through the Illinois Territory toward their destination which was to be Boon's Lick, Mo., they stopped to have lunch on a cold November day in 1816, where the Madison County Courthouse stands today. After they ate, the teams were hitched and they proceeded toward Alton, where they planned to cross the river into Missouri.

As they passed through Edwardsville, Edward Fountain, an inn keeper, recognized Tindall. They had been schoolmates in Virginia. Fountain persuaded the group to stop for a few days.

Tindall went into camp with his family near where the Washburn train station stands today, but soon moved his family into a log courthouse, where the family wintered. The recently-built log county courthouse had no fire or chimney. A fire was built in one corner of the room on the dirt floor and the smoke escaped through a hole in the roof.

When the second Monday in March 1817 arrived, Tindall and his family had to move out of the courthouse. The court was once again in session. Tindall built a log house nearby and lived there until his death in 1832. He was buried at Lusk Cemetery.

Tindall and Ruben Hopkins are the only known Revolutionary soldiers who are still buried in that cemetery. The remains of another Revolutionary soldier, George Prickett who came to Madison County in 1808, were removed from Lusk Cemetery to Woodlawn Cemetery in the 1930's when the cemetery became Lusk Memorial Park.

Ruben Hopkins, who was a Brigadier General in the Revolutionary War, served in the House and Senate as a representative of Orange County, N.Y., before coming to Edwardsville, where he practiced law.

In 1819, on the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence everyone gathered at the "Sign of George Washington," a hotel across from the log courthouse, where Tindall and his family had wintered in Edwardsville.

Every year, on the Fourth of July, it was tradition to have Gen. Hopkins read the Declaration of Independence. Following the reading, there were 21 patriotic toasts, including the one to "The Town of Edwardsville—More wives and less bachelors; and may they all be as celebrated for the discharge of their private duties, as they now are for their patriotism." Everyone gave three cheers and drank to that.

Study shows sick leave not abused by most GC employees

Mayor Paul Schuler said a 22-month sick leave report reveals a relatively low amount of sick leave time is being taken by the city's workforce.

The mayor has asked the city's aldermen to study the report — the first complete survey of city government sick leave days taken since 1979 — and to present their views on the report in the near future.

"There are two significant points disclosed in this sick leave report. First, the low amount of regular earnings spent on sick leave. Second, the fact that often it was one or two people in a department using the majority of sick leave," according to the report, prepared by Maureen McGee, an intern in the mayor's office.

The survey does not indicate the cost of replacement pay for positions which cannot go unmanned during an illness. Schuler said paid replacements are not necessary for all employees.

The total number of sick leave days taken in 1980 was 1,297. More sick leave was taken during the month of January than any other month during 1980. The total number of sick days taken during the first 10 months of this year, however at 1,295, was only two days short of the 1980 total.

In the police and fire departments last year, a major portion of the sick leave was taken by a few employees. Three employees in the police department took several weeks of sick leave, and one employee in the humane department had taken several days during a two-month period.

In 1981, five departments had personal with long-term illness or hospitalization. Those departments affected by the illness were fire, general government, police, street and sewerage treatment. The absences involved one to three employees per month in each of those departments.

The report cites the Wastewater Treatment Plant as the obvious past abuser of sick day leave, confirming allegations of past heavy absenteeism at the plant voiced last summer by Alderman Warren Decatur of the Fourth Ward and chairman of the pollution plant committee.

Absenteeism in that department dropped, however, when the department was in the public spotlight last July and has remained down since that time, according to conclusions contained in the sick leave survey.

Schuler said there is no doubt sick leave had been abused in that department but that the problem there has been corrected.

"Upon examining the individual graphs of each department, it is evident that a significant number of days were used by comparatively few people. The majority of those few using high amounts of sick leave have been hospitalized," stated the report which spans January, 1980, to October, 1981.

The survey, containing 22 graphs, is divided into four basic categories. The first two categories represent a breakdown of the total number of sick leave days taken, by month and year. The third category compares regular earnings to the amount of earnings spent on sick leave.

In the fourth category, each department is represented by its own graph from 1980 and 1981 demonstrating by month, the amount of leave taken and how many people took those days," Miss McGee said in the report.

According to the first category in the survey, "The Sewage Treatment Plant ranks well above the other departments in sick leave while in 1980, most of 1981, most of the departments are mostly the same."

In the second category, the report states that last year "the days seem to follow a cycle of high amounts of leave taken every three months." In 1981, however, a high amount of leave days was taken in May and June with progressively fewer days taken in the fall months.

In the third category, the survey indicates a "relatively low amount of regular earnings are spent for sick leave."

Schuler said that amount might be even lower, when the public considers that no "dollar amounts" had to be spent in replacements for many employees when they were absent.

The amount of regular payroll of each department for the first 10 months of this year, and the portion of that paid during sick leave time, is: fire, $928,242 (payroll), and $55,923 (portion paid to employees during sick time); street, $642,962 and $24,206; general government, $365,728 and $4,821; police, $1,075,473 and $40,841.

Inspection (combined, except air pollution), $165,992 and $1,851; humane, $31,499 and $1,125; Wastewater Treatment Plant, $375,664 and $24,974; air pollution, $40,861 and $849; and emergency medical technicians, $283,871 and $15,714.

In 1981 through October, the number of days taken by each department were: fire, 122 (days); street, 309; general government, 85; police, 315; inspection, 27; humane, 20; wastewater treatment plant, 320; air pollution, 16; and emergency medical technicians, 84.

Ban 'X' but don't create county panel to judge TV

William R. Haine of the County Board has admirable intentions in his effort to have the board regulate the content of programs transmitted over cable television.

But even if there was justification for protecting us against ourselves, the proposals that a family pays to obtain—and is not obligated to purchase—the county lacks the financing and expertise to do a competent censorship job.

The suggestion by Board Member Louis Whitsett makes a lot more sense. If a board majority is convinced that county governmental action is needed, perhaps it might wish to ban X-rated films and programs.

This would seem to accomplish what Mr. Haine has in mind, without undertaking the costly, difficult task of pre-screening and judging cable offerings.

The national rating system is far from perfect, but probably is administered better from all points of view—than a community or county would be able to do on a makeshift basis. The county, hard pressed for funds, should take such an expense to its budget and tax levy.

It is the topic—a cable TV ordinance—that needs to be discussed, of course, not the originator of the idea.

And we don't criticize Mr. Haine, who is a conscientious board member as well as the dedicated chairman of the Madison County Mass Transit Board.

He has a sharp mind, a ready wit and a agreeable manner, and has charmed a lot of audiences while discussing the woes of the bus system. However, he is one of the youngest County Board members and is elected from only one-third of the county. We are not yet ready to select him as the arbiter of what should or should not appear on the TV screens of this 250,000-population county.

Mr. Haine freely says he doesn't watch TV. He hasn't owned a set for many years, does not encourage his family to watch TV, and is personally revolted by many of the programs. Clearly, and by his own admission, he does not view the subject in a detached, objective way.

Good motives simply are not enough reason or reassurance to warrant placing TV content in the hands of Mr. Haine, or in the hands of a panel that might be created due to his proposed county law.

We don't have that much confidence in the ability of the panel, even before it is chosen. And, as noted, we don't want to pay for any more quasi-governmental staffs to "help" us live our lives.

In a letter asking the county to resolve and proposed ordinance, Mr. Haine wrote that he hopes for action now, not so much because of any current situations, but to "solve any future problems we may have in this area."

It is not only tough to solve all of the present troubles of the county and world, but it is also impossible to remedy problems that have not yet developed. Our advice is: "If it isn't broken, don't fix it."

Construction pensions could ease mortgage squeeze

No one seems to have a quick solution to the problems besetting the housing industry and would-be home owners, but a partial remedy may be a new program by the Labor Department to permit construction-oriented pension plans to invest in residential mortgages.

These pension plans have about $20 billion in assets. Taking notice of this, President Reagan has asked Congress to permit to move as expeditiously as possible to complete the drafting of regulations providing greater freedom for all pension funds to invest additional monies in housing if they choose to do so.

The goal is to open up a new and important source of mortgage funds, which have been in inadequate supply at affordable interest rates.

Action is being taken under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) of 1974, which governs private pension plans and protects beneficiaries of pension programs and other employee benefit plans.

The president emphasized at a White House ceremony that appropriate safeguards to protect participants will continue to guide the Labor Department's decisions on ERISA matters.

The National Conference on Housing has noted that more than a half-trillion dollars is available for investment by pension funds, counting all types of such funds, and that this figure is expected to grow to $3 trillion by 1995. In contrast, only $7 billion (if it is possible to use "only" and "billion" in the same phrase) is currently invested in mortgages.

Pres. Reagan commented, "The present and projected changes are not intended to water down basic ERISA investment protection. Rather, they serve to demonstrate our commitment to eliminate barriers and unlock important new doors to prudent investment in the housing market."

Those at the ceremony included President John T. Joyce of the International Union of Bricklayers and Allied Craftworkers, President Charles H. Pillard of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and representatives of national homebuilder, Realtor, savings and loan and mortgage banker associations.

Fourth tax installment due Jan. 18

The fourth installment of estimated federal tax payments on 1981 individual income is due by Jan. 18, 1982, the Internal Revenue Service says.

This installment should be paid using Declaration Voucher four found in the Form 1040-ES package, "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals."

Taxpayers whose anticipated income changed during 1981 may have to file an amended declaration. Space is provided in the estimated tax package to compute an amended estimate.

For more detailed information, the IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," is available free by calling the IRS forms-tax information number in the local telephone directory, a spokesman said.

Help for heart attack survivors

Survival rates for heart attack victims could increase dramatically with the aid of a commonly used drug — propranolol.

Recent propranolol study results, according to a report in Science magazine, the weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS), indicate as many as 26 percent fewer deaths among heart attack patients given the drug.

The National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI), which conducted the study nine months early because the results were so good.

The NHLBI decided it would be unethical to continue to give half of the study's participants placebo (unmedicated pills) rather than the drug being tested.

The propranolol trials began in 1975 and involved 4,000 heart attack victims between the ages of 30 and 69. All were enrolled in the study between five and 21 days after their attacks and were randomly assigned to take a placebo or propranolol.

After two years of follow-up, the propranolol group had 26 percent fewer deaths. Each year 1,250,000 people in the United States suffer heart attacks. Of these, 350,000 survive.

Until now, cardiologists have had no proven drug to help patients who have survived a heart attack. Now, according to NHLBI estimates, widespread use of propranolol could not only improve the chances of survival of these patients, but could actually save 6,500 lives every year.

Propranolol is already one of the most widely used drugs in the U.S., reports Science Research News writer Gina Bari Kolata. It is frequently prescribed to lower blood pressure or to relieve angina pectoris (chest pain caused by a decrease in blood to the heart).

Propranolol belongs to a class of drugs called "beta blockers" which cause the heart to beat more slowly. This is the third in a series of NHLBI studies of drugs to improve survival rates of heart attack patients. It is the first study with positive results.

In the mid-1960's, the institute began a study of five cholesterol-lowering drugs, but these proved ineffective. In fact, three of these drugs were so toxic they had to be dropped from the study.

In the early 1970's, the NHLBI tested aspirin. The tests were inconclusive, showing no clear benefit from the drug.

William Friedewald, associate director for clinical applications and prevention at the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, describes the propranolol test results as "an exciting breakthrough."

"Now, we have a drug that reduces mortality by 26 percent. That's an astonishing figure."

Christmas. "There is no replacement for a lost eye from a hazardous toy," Edgar T. Britton, executive director of the ISPB and author of the Santa letter, said.

Projectile toys, sharp instruments, pellets and darts are a few of the dangerous toys on the market that can turn the season's joyous holiday into a nightmare at the emergency room in an effort to rescue the precious gift of sight.

The Illinois Society reminds Santa to remember the age, circumstances and supervision a child will receive when toys are delivered Christmas Eve.

"The Illinois Society knows Santa will cooperate in its campaign for eye safety, because Christmas is for children throughout the world," Britton said.

COLLIDES WITH TWO AUTOS ON PONTOON
Robert Joe Batey, 19, of Jefferson City, Mo., was arrested for reckless driving at 2:25 a.m. Saturday after his westbound auto crossed the center line twice in the 2200 block of Pontoon Road, hitting the left side of the eastbound car of Chris Kozuch, 3665 Rodney, and then the front of the eastbound auto of Floyd Price, 3909a Village Lane.

After being arrested, Batey was charged with police, who alleged finding two beer cans in a jacket pocket; he was charged with illegal transportation of alcohol. The Kozuch and Batey vehicles were towed from the scene. Batey was released from police custody
